Civil Rights

American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), National Prison Project

The ACLU works daily in courts, legislatures and communities to defend and preserve the individual rights and liberties that the Constitution and laws of the United States guarantee everyone in this country.

The ACLU National Prison Project is dedicated to ensuring that our nation's prisons, jails, and other places of detention comply with the Constitution, domestic law, and international human rights principles, and to ending the policies that have given the United States the highest incarceration rate in the world. We promote a fair and effective criminal justice system in which incarceration is used only as a last resort, and its purpose is to prepare prisoners for release and a productive, law-abiding life at the earliest possible time.

The ACLU has an affiliate in every state. The affiliates handle requests for legal assistance, lobby the state legislatures, and host public forums throughout the year. For a full list of state affiliates, visit www.aclu.org/affiliates.

Legal Action Center (LAC) & National H.I.R.E. Network

The Legal Action Center is a law and policy organization whose mission is to fight discrimination against people with histories of addiction, HIV/AIDS, or criminal records, and to advocate for sound public policies in these areas. The Legal Action Center is committed to helping people reclaim their lives, maintain their dignity, and participate fully in society as productive, responsible citizens.

Established by the Legal Action Center in 2001, the National H.I.R.E. Network works to increase the number and quality of job opportunities available to people with criminal records by changing public policies, employment practices, and public opinion. H.I.R.E. accomplishes these goals by providing leadership on public policy advocacy, providing technical assistance and training on overcoming labor market barriers based on a criminal record, and promoting collaboration between individuals directly affected by the criminal justice system, advocates, practitioners, researchers, and policymakers working to improve the employability of people with criminal records. Its emphasis on advocacy offers families a voice in the formation of national policy, services and supports for children with mental health needs and their families.

The National Federation's chapters (listed below) provide the groundwork at the organization's state and local levels in order to make their services and programs as easily accessible as possible.

CURE is a membership organization and work to provide members with the information and tools necessary to help them understand the criminal justice system and to advocate for changes.

CURE's state chapters serve as the organization's local affiliates in helping those who are incarcerated receive the resources they need to better themselves and allow for members across the country to get involved.

School-to-Prison Pipeline

Advancement Project

Advancement Project is a civil rights law, policy, and communications “action tank” that advances universal opportunity and a just democracy for those left behind in America. They believe that sustainable progress can be made when multiple tools—law, policy analysis, strategic communications, technology, and research— are coordinated with grassroots movements. Advancement Project was founded by veteran civil rights lawyers who were looking for new ways to dismantle structural barriers to inclusion, secure racial equity, and expand opportunity for all.
